CloverLeaf Digital Provides News Video Clips from Local CBS Affiliate to Grande Communications

News and Sports Video Clips from KOSA are Now Available On-Demand for Grande Communications' Cable TV Subscribers

Brooklyn, NY, February 5, 2007 – CloverLeaf Digital LLC, a leading provider of interactive television applications and services, announced today that it has added local news and sports video clips to Grande Interactive TV, the interactive television news and information service provided to Grande Communications by CloverLeaf Digital.

Video clips from Odessa, Texas CBS affiliate KOSA's local news programs are now included in the on-demand interactive television service available to Grande digital cable customers in seven Texas cities. The local news clips compliment other video content available on Grande Interactive TV, including news and entertainment news clips from The Associated Press and movie trailers.

"Grande is always looking for content and services that provide additional value to our customers," said Diane Wigington, Director of Video Services for Grande. "Grande Interactive TV is one of the ways that we differentiate our offerings from those of our competitors, and, as a company that understands local pride, we're thrilled to be able to offer on-demand local news video in the communities that we serve."

"We are excited to be able to include video clips from KOSA on-demand in our localized interactive TV service," said Lawrence Brickman, Managing Partner of CloverLeaf. "One of the great strengths of this type of interactive TV service is that we are able to offer local content that can otherwise be difficult for consumers to find, and we are able to make it available whenever they want it, right on their TV at the click of their remote control."

In addition to video content, CloverLeaf's interactive TV service (often known as a walled garden), provided to Grande and other cable and telephone companies, includes news and sports from the AP, local weather, local entertainment guides, horoscopes, classified ads and community events calendars.
